design. The seal is arranged so as to give a striped effect on searf and must. The barrel must and striped seaf of black fox and ermine form another stunning fur set in the popular alliance. Enter the seart. The fox forms the front, while a bow of black-and-white satin carries the combination idea to a delightful finish. The must suggests the staves of a barrel in the arrangement of the ermine on the ends. Fox forms the central strip. Even in the hat is the black-and-white alliance noticeable.

Tailless ermine forms two strips of a neckpiece, crossing in front and hanging down in two points at the back. On one side is the head of the black fox, on the other the tail. The must shows an under portion of ermine on white satin, while the black fur is applied in a slanting line from top to or ermine on with sainty, while the base for try is applied in a slanting line from top to bottom.

Caracul is combined with snowy ermine or coney in the model that is more black than white. The black scarf has one end of ermine. Fringed with tails. A button of ermine gives a chie fastening. On one side of the large muff is a border of white, with tails at the bottom of the strip. Here is an idea for using an ermine piece that is too small for this season's styles. Have it combined with an inexpensive black fur as shown.

The beauty of white fox, especially for a young woman, is indisputable. Here it is combined with black velvet, which formst her ruffle of the neckpiece and the entire back of the muff. The dead white of the fox is broken by a lovely red rose that nestless in the fur.

Black and white in a strong alliance is offering good style to womankind. It harmonizes with any color, and is not too somber, not too perishable. It is fitting for the young maid and the older matron. It is just as becoming under golden hair modistic mean between two stylish extenses. And the world of femininity can rejoice at the joining of such forces in the realm of furs.

HAMILTON'S FAVORITE SHOPPING PLACE

Use the Right House Club Plan in Home Furnishing

WHAT is the Home Furnishing Plan? It is an arrangement under which persons may purchase home furnishings without paying the entire amount immediately.

By Home Furnishings we mean anything included in the equipment of a home—such as furniture, pictures, carpets, rugs, linoleums, oileloths, gas stoves, beds, bed-ding, draperies, lace curtains, window blinds, dishes, ent glass, kitchen utensils, laundry furnishings, refrigerat-ors, cutlery, linen, baby carriages, etc.

At the time of the purchase you pay one-sixth of the amount, payment of the balance covering a period of six months. During this time you have full use of your purchase.

This transaction is dignified and confidential like that of any business man who gets capital from a bank on a note, something that is done every day hundreds of times. The business man, however, must pay interest. You pay no interest, no fee, no charge whatsoever.

It is important that you consider this now, because you may desire to avail yourself of it during such money-saving opportunities as the January Clearance and White Sales and the February Furniture Sale.

Facts To Be Considered in Dealing With Question of Licence Reduction---Why By Law Should Not Be Supported

Q. Will you explain what the license reduction by-laws are that the electors will be called to vote on Jan. 6, 1912?

A. There are two, one calling for a reduction of 27 hotel it-censes and the other calling for a reduction of 5 shop licenses.

Q. If the by-laws are carried has the eithy commit or the license commissioners the option of altering the number to be cut off?

A. No. If the by-laws carry, the license commissioner must cut off the rull 27 hotel licenses and 5 shop licenses. The city council is not concerned in the matter in any way beyond ratifying the by-laws if the people carry them.

Q. Who would have the selecting of the places to be cut off if the by-laws should carry?
